Morris Krinsky took over the junk business from his father Andover's junk yard, like it or not

By Don Staruk

Seventy-five-year-old Morris Krinsky is as much of a curiosity to newcomers here as the idea of a junk yard in the center of an affluent community like Andover.

He lives at 33 Florence St., but sits most days in a chair amongst his merchandise at the adjacent H. Krinsky and Son junk yard, at 48 Park St., just a block or so off Main Street right downtown.

Storm windows and screens are stacked neatly against the house. Heaps of rusted iron framing, iron pipes, steam radiators, hub caps, wheels, aluminum pipes, bathtubs, toilets and sinks are all stacked orderly in separate piles in the yard with pathways weaving through the junk.

In one of three barns on the property, half a dozen hack saws hang by a workbench, which is covered with metal shears, chisels and other implements of destruction

$492k extra in state aid is for local schools

By Lisa Boudreau

Andover school officials expect to see plenty of lobbying by different factions on how the town should spend the almost $500,000 extra in state aid Andover has been promised this year. The Legislature last week passed a $186-million aid package that pledges $492,200 to Andover and as much as $7 to $9 million each to Lawrence, Lowell and Boston.

Two bells ring at the Main Street fire station. Two firefighters assigned to the ambulance rush into action. It was last Thursday, 4 p.m., and emergency medical technicians Barry Thornton and Shawn Kelley were on ambulance duty.

The call was from Suburban Healthcare Center, Stevens Street. A 79-year-old asthmatic woman was having trouble breathing. As they wheeled her from the clinic and lifted her into the back of the ambulance, EMT Thornton patted the woman's hand, told her they would be at Lawrence General Hospital soon and to "relax if you can."

"Her doctor (at the clinic) thought she should go to the hospital, but she felt dizzy and didn't feel she could drive, so we're going to transport her there," he told a

Twenty-somethings on life after college

By Betsy Frankenberger

How's life after college? Ask those who recently graduated and who are facing tough economic times. Seven Andover residents with recent college degrees shared their thoughts with the Townsman about politics, the economy, the job market, AIDS and discrimination. They spoke of their concerns, fears and hopes for the future.

The following twenty-somethings participated in this informal survey:

Jill Coon, 21, who received a bachelor of science in business administration from the University of New Hampshire; Brian Worcester, 22, bachelor of science, communications, University of Massachusetts; Nancy Walsh, 23, associate of arts in merchandizing/business, Bauder College, Atlanta; Jeremy Schall, 23, bachelor of arts in economics/Latin American studies, Rollins College, Winter Park, Fla.; Joshua Yezerski, 22, bachelor of

What to do with $292k?

"I expect the School Committee will be hearing from a lot of people as to how it should spend the money," said Frank Paul, Andover's school business manager.

Mr. Paul said in addition to teachers lobbying to restore positions lost in recent budget cuts and parents pushing for school building repairs, he expects to hear from members of the seven labor unions the committee is currently negotiating with — teachers, administrators, secretaries, nurses, food service, custodians and aides.

Every community will receive at least $100 more per pupil, and cities and towns that spend less than the state average per pupil will be eligible for an extra sum of money set aside for that purpose. According to Chris Outwin of the School Committee, the Senate placed restrictions on how the money can be spent.

"The Massachusetts Teachers Association (teachers union) would be delighted to see the entire sum go to increasing existing teachers' salaries... but the Senate modified the language and the money can't be used to increase teachers' salaries. It has to go to program restoration," he said.

Dr. Outwin said one of the School Committee's priorities is to fix moisture problems at West Elementary School, a problem that caused a mold build up last spring. The school had to be closed for a few days. Other priorities of the committee are to fix the heating system at West Middle and fix the roof at Bancroft Elementary, which has leaked since the school was built more than 20 years ago.

Dr. Outwin said spending the money on school buildings is consistent with the intent of the grant.

"I feel the loss of certain programs and personnel as much as other people, but I still feel that dealing with the infrastructure problems are the most severe need. This may be our one moment in time to try and catch up with our needs for the school buildings," he said.

Mr. Paul said the state Department of Revenue hasn't told Andover when it will receive its share.

"We don't know if it's coming in the form of a grant, or as supplemental Chapter 70 state aid. We also don't know for sure if there are stipulations as to how it must be spent," he said.

According to Mr. Paul, if the money is part of Chapter 70 money paid to communities in two installments — December and June — residents will have to vote at town meeting to spend the money. If the $492,200 is a grant, then it can be spent by the School Committee without a town meeting vote.

The Department of Revenue is currently revising its cherry sheets (aid allotments). That information will be available in mid-August, he said.

Wendy Wakeman, an aide to State Rep. Gary Coon, R-Andover, said the Department of Revenue told her the payments made to Andover and other towns that spend at, or above, the state average per pupil, will come from a separate line item in the state budget and won't be part of Chapter 70 state aid.

Mr. Paul said until he receives notification in writing from the state that the $492,200 is coming, he won't advise the money be added to the school budget.

"A few years ago the governor froze the money and we had to wait until the following year for all of our state-aid money," he said.

According to a memo to town officials from the Massachusetts Municipal Association, the money will not be permanently added to state aid payments, Mr. Paul said. As far as he knows, the $492,200 will be a one-time payment.

The School Committee is expected to discuss the issue at its next meeting, Tuesday Aug. 11, in the school office building on Whittier Court at 7:30 p.m.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Police agree to single detail rate

By Don Staruk

Police lieutenants, sergeants and patrolmen agreed last week to use a single detail rate of $35 an hour for all officers, regardless of rank, effective Aug. 10.

The rate is still among the highest, if it is not the highest, rate paid for extra-duty details such as road construction jobs, in the state.

Andover's lieutenants were getting paid $49.94 an hour and sergeants were getting $38.88 an hour. Patrolmen agreed to the $35-an-hour rate, up from $29, when they signed their new contract in June.

Lieutenants and sergeants agreed to use the $35 rate last week after negotiations with Buzz Stapczynski, town manager.

Andover's detail rates compare to average rates of $26 for state police and $22 for local police in Massachusetts, according to a recent study by the state Department of Public Works. Jodi D'Urso, spokeswoman for the state DPW, said last month that even the $35 patrolmen's rate may be the highest in the state.

Wellesley and Lexington, two towns often compared to Andover, pay hourly rates of $26.50 and $25.85 respectively for details, regardless of rank. Locally, Wilmington pays a flat rate of $22 an hour, North Andover $25 and Boxford $22.40.

The rates are high because detail pay traditionally has been used as a bargaining chip in contract negotiations as a way to keep down the cost of salaries and other benefits, according to Police Chief James Johnson. The chief considers the flat rate a move back away from using detail pay to settle contracts.

Officers are paid a four-hour minimum for details and eight hours if the detail exceeds four hours. Any detail that starts in the morning and goes past noon is paid a minimum of eight hours, and any time over eight hours per detail is paid at 1.5 times the hourly rate. The rate for holidays is 2.5 times the regular detail rate. Most communities follow those guidelines.

When four or more officers are working a detail, an officer will be assigned to be in charge and that officer will be paid at a higher rate, but that rate was not specified in a letter to contractors from the town manager this week.

Most details are paid by private contractors, and are not a cost for the town. Andover police officers earned $428,903 in detail pay last year, calendar year 1991. Firefighters and auxiliary officers, filling in for police, earned another $34,024 for a total of $462,927.

arts in mathematics, New York University, New York City; Susan Hourihan, 22, associate of arts, Katherine Gibbs, Boston and presently enrolled at Merrimack College; and Scott Wallace, 22, bachelor of arts in philosophy/American studies, Brandeis University, Waltham.

When asked what is the greatest concern and/or fear of college graduates today, six of the seven interviewed answered the job search, a topic of discussion that dominated the interviews. But their feelings on this subject go beyond money making.

"Because of the recession, people will take any job that they can get," said Ms. Coon, who is presently employed with The Boston Company. "It's so important to find not only a job, but to find one in your career as well."

All seven interviewed presently hold a job, though not necessarily one he or she hopes to keep permanently. Four of the seven said they would be interested in working for the company they're employed with, but want "higher" positions. Said Ms. Walsh, "I would like to stay with Filene's. But I plan on progressing, to grow with the company. I want to be a buyer."

An indirect result of society's move toward specialization is the declining significance of a bachelor's degree. The pursuit of additional degrees is becoming more common, according to these graduates. Says Mr. Worcester, who will enter Emerson College this fall to work toward his master's degree in communications/public relations, "A (bachelor of arts) significance is equal to what a high school diploma used to be."

Mr. Schall agrees. "I'm a double major from a good college. Unless you specialize in a certain area, there are few opportunities. And I did not leave college with any special skills."

All seven express dissatisfaction with the present job market; all but one are satisfied with his or her college education. Said Mr. Wallace, "I don't know how much my major applies to the field I'm interested in. But I know that in four years I learned the most I could ever learn."

"Overall, making connections is more important than any degree," added Mr. Wallace. "It was by coincidence that the Celtics came to Brandeis. I started off as a ball-boy at games. I got to meet a lot of people. Now I'm a publicity intern."

What about those who didn't get a bachelor's of arts degree?

"I don't think many people (are satisfied) with an A.A. But I'm going to New Hampshire College this fall for my B.A. in business," said Ms. Walsh.

Ms. Hourihan chose a different educational route. When she was in high school, she decided to go to a pre-professional school, Katherine Gibbs. She is now pleased with her decision. She has been with Charles River Laboratories, Wilmington, for two years and has received tuition reimbursement. "I have all that I could ask for. I love my job; I work in the chairman's office and; my education at Merrimack is being paid for."

Ms. Hourihan said job placement was easy for her because "Katherine Gibbs taught (her) to become a professional and referred (her) to this job." A 1988 graduate of

Twenty-somethings on life after college

Andover High. Ms. Hourihan believes that many of her former classmates may have a more difficult time finding work than she had two years ago.

The situation for the job-seeker and the employer is a similar ballgame. Bill Regan, director of career services and cooperative education at Merrimack College, said the "market is flooded with over-qualified people." He sympathizes with the college graduate who is on the job-hunt because he sees a highly competitive search ahead. But he, too, has to make certain decisions about which degree candidates to hire.

"An ad was placed once in The Boston Globe for the position of assistant director of career services," he said. "So far I have received over 260 resumes from qualified people, ranging from students fresh out of college and with 10-15 years experience. Yes, there are many people with B.A.s who are capable of working at this job, but a candidate with a master's degree is always preferred."

But it is no secret to the post-college student, or to his or her parent(s) that the cost of education is on the rise. Four out of seven said they helped finance their undergraduate studies; all those (five) continuing their education will pay their own way (with the exception of Ms. Hourihan). Said Mr. Worcester, "If there are no jobs, then I may as well continue with my education. I'd rather go to school and build debts than not go to school and build debts."

When asked if the post-college life has been a high point or a low one for the graduate, three said it was a middle point, a transitory condition. Said Mr. Schall, "It's a break in the consistency of development. Things are going to work out for me. I have a plan."

The rest agree that despite a few general discomforts (such as living at home after being independent for so long), these past few months have been quite pleasurable. "I think about the future a lot," said Mr. Yezerki. "But I know I'm just in limbo."

For the recent graduates in limbo, societal problems have not made their future struggle any easier. Political issues that these twenty-somethings are concerned with are the abortion question, the environment, racial discrimination and AIDS. Five of the seven are registered to vote.

How difficult is it for young adults to live in the age of AIDS? "People in the '90s are slowing down their sexual patterns," according to Mr. Schall.

Said Mr. Worcester, "I've observed a great difference in behavior. I was president of my dorm and we put up condom machines. Also, there were non-credit courses on AIDS that were offered and they were always filled."

But Mr. Wallace said AIDS hasn't changed young people's behavior. "The scary thing is that I don't think it's difficult (to live in the age of AIDS) at all. I can't understand how people's behavior hasn't changed. I don't know what it's going to take before it really sinks in. I hear stories about what so-and-so did the night before, and it amazes me. I think we're going to be in trouble for a lot longer."

Ms. Hourihan said the problem she sees is alcohol abuse. "People do not take care of themselves. I see people older than me that are still going every night and getting drunk. People should care about their health a lot more," she said.

The seven said it is impossible to categorize, in range of significance, the difficulties that exist in society today. Four said they are fearful for the younger generation of students, for reasons such as competition, the economy, AIDS, discrimination and the educational system itself. The rest believe that determination and hard work will compensate for what other burdens may lie ahead.

"People play the fear tactic a little too much," said Mr. Worcester. "There are jobs out there; eventually they will be gotten. For my grandparents, there was the Depression. Now it's the recession. There will always be something."

"Something" in the case of these graduates means a few obstacles scattered around, but a positive outcome nonetheless. Each interviewed said he or she would like to start a family someday, although six of the seven think they will not become parents for at least seven to nine years from now. The excluded statistic is Ms. Hourihan, who is to wed Andover resident Peter Comeau in the fall of 1993. All those asked are confident they will live as well as their parent(s) did. Three of the seven said they would like to live in Andover, or a community similar to it, in the future.

Hoping to move away from his hometown by next year, Mr. Yezerki believes that "finding validity in one's life" is most important.

Planners pursue congregate housing for elderly

By Don Staruk

Town planners may seek a zoning change to allow existing residential and commercial buildings in town to be converted to congregate housing for the elderly.

"The conversion of existing structures to allow congregate units and independent dwelling units seems to be the most appropriate elderly housing option at this time," planner Laura Hill wrote in a memo presented to the Planning Board July 28.

Planning staff members have been studying elderly housing options since selectmen and members of the Council on Aging discussed the need for elderly housing in Andover last year.

Congregate housing units are either private or communal living arrangements for elderly persons who can get around on their own and need little or no medical supervision. They can be set up either as single units or as a group of rooms with shared facilities for cooking, eating, bathing and sleeping.

"These units may be rented, owned privately, or owned cooperatively with other residents as a non-profit organization," according to Ms. Hill.

Andover's elder population, 60 years old and up, increased 19 percent, from 3,627 to 4,322, from 1980 to 1990, according to U.S. Census figures.

The need in Andover, according to planners, is for housing that allows the elderly to live independently but communally with other elderly residents in a "home setting," where residents could take care of each other. Access to off-site medical services is adequate so that such services are not needed on site. A community room and central dining room should be part of the housing, but each unit could be self sufficient.

The current zoning bylaw does not provide for, or include a definition of, congregate housing, and the bylaw would have to be amended or changed at town meeting.

Planners will probably have a zoning change proposal ready for the Annual Town Meeting in April.

Other planning business

The board, at its meeting on July 28, also:

- Approved a site plan special permit for Vicor Corp. to construct a 60,000-square-foot building at property owned by the company on Frontage Road. The hearing had been continued from April 7 while Vicor fought an appeal in court of a use variance granted for the project by the Zoning Board of Appeals. The court ruled in favor of Vicor on the appeal last month.

After the 30-day appeal period on last week's special permit decision, Vicor will have two years to begin construction. A delay is expected because Vicor is also pursuing buying two pieces of property on Federal Street in West Andover and may yet decide not to build on Frontage Road.

- Put off making a decision on the 14-lot Crystal Circle subdivision off

Blanchard Street to get more information.

- Approved the six-lot Molly Road subdivision located off River Road.

- Postponed a decision on a special permit to remove 30,000 cubic yards of loam from the Fieldstone Meadows subdivision, off Dascomb Road, because not enough board members who sat on the hearing were present for the vote.

- Reduced a $100,000 bond being held on the Woodland Park business development, on Federal Street, to $58,256 because road resurfacing was completed.

Meet Joseph Sardo. Like many people, Joe thought the best medical care was way down the pike, not around the corner. Until he learned from his cardiologist, Dr. Aubrey Dickman, that he had a blockage of the artery in his left leg. That was when he was referred to Dr. Mark Connaughton at the New England Memorial Hospital Center for Interventional Radiology.

As a highly skilled specialist, Dr. Connaughton was able to diagnose and treat Joe's vascular disorder non-surgically, performing a balloon angioplasty. Aided by the unique technology of a state-of-the-art digital imaging system not available at most hospitals, Dr. Connaughton and his trained team were able to perform the corrective procedure precisely without having Joe undergo the risk and trauma of major surgery. Joe felt very little pain, went home the next day, and recuperated in no time.

While some people are surprised that such breakthrough medical care is available so close to home, it's no longer a surprise to Joe Sardo. For the latest in quality patient care, he looks no further than his own community hospital.

Wetterau Foods donates to Greater Boston Food Bank

Wetterau Foods, based in Andover, has selected the Greater Boston Food Bank to receive a donation of Campbell's food products through "Campbell's Cares," a program run in April by the Campbell Sales Company. Wetterau Foods was one of 17 New England grocery chains and distributors to participate in "Campbell's Cares." Each distributor held a consumer sweepstakes with a grand prize of a month's free groceries; each also was able to choose a food assistance program to receive a product donation from Campbell's.

"We are pleased to be able to support the Greater Boston Food Bank through 'Campbell's Cares,'" said Ed Brouillet, division president of Wetterau Foods. "The recession has made hunger a growing problem in the communities we serve, so we welcomed this opportunity to participate in an effort to address this issue both through the hunger-assistance community and on the individual consumer level."

The Greater Boston Food Bank is a private non-profit distribution center for soup kitchens and shelters in Eastern Massachusetts that distributes 7.5 million pounds of food annually, according to Catherine Hogan, industrial relations director. "The support of all segments of the food industry is critical to our ability to meet the big increase in demand for our services," said Ms. Hogan. "We are extremely grateful for this donation."

"Campbell's has been active in the hunger relief effort for eight years," said Paul Giles, spokesperson for the "Campbell's Cares" program and category sales manager for soups. "Through this involvement, we're aware of the unprecedented growth in the numbers of people needing food assistance that the recession has caused. The situation is particularly acute in New England, where the economic downturn has been severe and lengthy, so we decided to make an extra effort this year to help local food-assistance charities in this six-state region."

Joanne Cunningham of Salem was drawn as the "Campbell's Cares" grand prize sweepstakes winner for Wetterau Foods and will receive a month's free groceries (up to $500 in value). Two additional sweepstakes winners, Kathleen Grenier of Lynn and Doris Smith of Cheshire, Conn., each received a week's worth of groceries (up to $150 in value).

Let us eat this cake

La Patisserie wins prize for its strawberry grand marnier cake

La Patisserie won the Presidential Prize from the Massachusetts Retail Bakers' Association for its strawberry grand marnier cake. In 1990, La Patisserie won top honors for its chocolate truffles, and in 1991 its chambord torte was named "Best Cake in New England." This third consecutive win makes La Patisserie one of the few "Triple Crown" bakeries in the region.

"It just feels wonderful," said La Patisserie owner and operator Stephen Pazyra. "This (award) shows that all of our hard work and employee skills have paid off."

The winning cake is a combination of white cake soaked in Grand Marnier, then layered with buttercream filling and fresh strawberries. The cake was produced by Beverly Dibble, affectionately known as "the cake lady," who holds a degree in culinary arts from Newbury College in Brookline.

When Mr. Pazyra, a Revere native, and his wife, Danette, bought La Patisserie in 1984, they had a single shop in Winchester where production was cramped into a tiny kitchen and decorating was done in a basement alcove. Mr. Pazyra went on to open a shop in Andover and the cramped Winchester kitchen was left behind in 1990 for a new production facility in Woburn where Mr. Pazyra and production manager Stephen Russell oversee the production of goods for three retail outlets and a growing wholesale business.

As for the tiny kitchen in Winchester, it still starts up every morning at 6. After customers said they missed the smell of fresh-baked food, Mr. Pazyra installed ovens in each store, thus insuring that all muffins, cookies and hot buns would be as fresh as they could be, another example of his dedication to quality and freshness.

And while winning an award may be sweet, there is still much work to be done. Mr. Pazyra plans to introduce a new line of cakes this year, and the search for the best possible ingredients and products is always continuing.

99 Restaurants add Braille menus

The 99 Restaurant-Pubs announces the initiation of Braille menus in all of their suburban properties. The company is offering this service to the sight impaired to take an affirmative stand on the American Disability Act.

There is a 99 in Andover and one in North Andover.

Andover resident Connie Dubois, L.P.N., at right in the photo, was recognized recently for her outstanding achievement and service to Lawrence General Hospital. A nurse with Lawrence General for nearly six years, Ms. Dubois works as a float nurse who goes to various floors in the hospital to help fully staff floors. Selected by her peers, Ms. Dubois was among 16 honored at the hospital's annual nurse recognition luncheon. In the photo, Judi Ryan, on the left, vice president of nursing at Lawrence General, congratulates Ms. Dubois.

Local drycleaner acts as firm-client mediator

A license has been awarded to Charles Anton of John Anton's Fabricare at 357 N. Main St., giving this firm the non-exclusive right to participate in an industry-wide claims mediation program for drycleaners and their customers.

The mediation service, Project Fair, is coordinated and administered by the Consumer Relations Department of the North East Fabricare Association (NEFA), the trade association for professional drycleaners in the northeast.

According to NEFA's Director of Consumer Affairs, Nelson E. Kravetz, on occasion and in spite of all reasonable efforts, a consumer textile product may fail during the drycleaning process. This failure may occur due to a processing error by the drycleaner; because of a manufacturing defect, including faulty care labeling; or from hidden damage caused by the consumer. When such a failure does occur, Project Fair participants offer assurance to the consumer that everything possible will be done to ensure equitable treatment from the retailer and manufacturer as well as from the individual drycleaner.

By participating in Project Fair, John Anton's Fabricare has agreed to follow a systematic claims adjustment procedure regardless of fault. Experience has shown that association involvement is often more effective than intervention by an individual drycleaner or consumer.

St. John's and St. Joseph's merge

The Trustees and incorporators of St. John's and St. Joseph's hospitals in Lowell voted July 30 to merge the two hospitals into a single entity effective Oct. 1.

The hospitals are among the oldest in the commonwealth and have served Lowell for a combined 275 years. The new hospital will have a new name, board of trustees, incorporators, new management structure, new corporate charter and bylaws and a single medical staff.

The new trustees have been named, and this board will function as a steering committee until the completion of legal and regulatory requirements for the Oct. 1 designation of the new hospital. The new name will soon be chosen and will reflect the Catholic nature and heritage of St. Joseph's and St. John's.

The new incorporators include representatives from the Sisters of Charity of Ottawa, the Oblate Fathers of the Northern and Eastern Provinces and Catholic laypersons from the Lowell community.

Merger will offer operational efficiencies and the flexibility to adopt new programs and services in step with the evolutionary progress of the health care industry.

Your Dental HEALTH

by Richard D. Hopgood, D.M.D.

ROOM FOR IMPROVEMENT

As each succeeding generation enters adulthood, it displays evidence of better dental care. Children are likely to have better teeth than their parents due to increased awareness of dental health factors, more frequent dental checkups, a greater prevalence of fluoridated water supplies, and improved brushing and flossing habits. The adult public is now also quite aware that the health of its gums plays a greater role in the loss of teeth than does dental decay. It is the dentist's hope that education will help stem the tide of tooth loss. As of today, 12 percent of the women and 16 percent of the men over the age of 50 have lost all of their original teeth. In the over-60 group, these percentages climb to 15 percent and 17 percent respectively. These are numbers we hope to improve upon.

Don't be a dental statistic. Keep ahead of problems and don't postpone dental work that needs to be done. Take a few minutes to learn good oral hygiene and practice it faithfully. Regular dental care is easy - it's dealing with the affects of neglect that can be time consuming and costly. I believe in preventive dental care here at 296 Lowell Street, Rt 133, with easy access off Rt 93, and will do all I can to keep your teeth and gums healthy and problem free. Office hours are Mon & Thurs 10-8, Tues & Fri 8-6, and by appointment. Phone: 475-2431

P.S. A 15-year study shows that those treated with sealants as children have half as many cavities as their untreated counterparts.

Nevins Family Services gets excellence award

The Nevins Family of Services and the Nevins Home received an award recently for Excellence in Intergenerational Programming from the Massachusetts Intergenerational Network at their annual conference held recently at the Sheraton Tara in Newton.

The Intergenerational Program at The Nevins Home and its Family of Services has grown under the direction of Paul McCarty.

Mr. McCarty came to the Nevins Home and the Family of Services in November 1989 as executive director of the Family of Services. The Family of Services at the time was made up of two adult day-health centers, a medical transportation company providing transportation and The Kids' Place.

Mr. McCarty has not only expanded The Kids' Place Preschool (now serving 32 children daily) but added a kindergarten program (serving 16 children daily). Mr. McCarty, Child Care Director Lisa Buglione and Martha Keleher, activity director at the Adult Day Health Center, were instrumental in implementing and organizing a program involving children from the preschool and kindergarten and the adults from the Adult Day Health Center in Methuen and the Nevins Nursing Home (on campus).

Although the Adult Day Health Center in North Andover is unable to coordinate intergenerational activities with The Kids' Place because of their location, it continues to operate an intergenerational program with local schools. Joan Poutenis is program director and Stacey Lowe is activity director. The experiences the adults have shared with the fifth-graders from the Franklin School in North Andover have benefited both groups, according to personnel involved in the program. They made a quilt, played games, shared picnics and memories of their lives. The students, each in their own way by poems, essays or drawings, expressed what they learned about elders in a homemade book Generations in Action.

Mr. McCarty's newest idea is to create an intergenerational park on the Nevins campus. The proposal is now in the works.

Local man re-elected to lead planning group

The Merrimack Valley Planning Commission (MVPC), at its recent annual meeting, elected officers composed largely of Lawrence-area residents who have an extraordinary record of volunteer public service. Nearly all the officers have given decades of local or regional service on behalf of civic betterment in the Merrimack Valley. Cumulatively, the board represents 125 years of volunteer work for the area.

Dr. Lawrence S. Spiegel of Andover was re-elected chairman for his second term. He has been an active volunteer in many local and regional civic groups. Foremost has been his leadership in the growth of Andover as a job center with industrial and office parks. For more than 20 years, he has served as chairman of the Andover Industrial Development Commission and Andover Industrial Financing Authority.

Luther E. McIlwain of Methuen is the re-elected vice chairman. Mr. McIlwain has provided nearly 40 years of public service leadership in the fields of civil rights, affirmative action, equal employment opportunity, fair housing and law enforcement. He serves as Affirmative Action director for Methuen, chairman of the Regional Housing Fair Share Plan Committee and governor's appointee to the state advisory board of the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination.

John A. Stundza of Lawrence was re-elected secretary. Mr. Stundza has served MVPC for more than 20 years, the Lawrence Planning Board for 25 years and various local elected and appointed boards for nearly 40 years.

Chairman Spiegel said he would like to thank MVPC for its work in strengthening the area's economic development. He thanked the "MVPC Commissioners for their outstanding long-term public-spiritedness, all of whom serve faithfully and without pay at the local and regional levels." He said it is "citizens such as those on MVPC that have made the Merrimack Valley the attractive and dynamic place it is."

Established in 1959, MVPC is a public agency composed of 14 cities and towns that promotes the orderly growth and development of the area.

WHERE THERE'S SMOKE

People have more reason than ever to convince their spouses to quit the smoking habit. Not only does smoking significantly compromise the health of smokers, but it also increases the cancer risk among the non-smokers who live with them. The most comprehensive study to date on the effects of "passive smoking" was conducted by scientists in five American cities. It involved 1,500 women who never smoked. Among this number, those who were exposed to their husbands' smoke had a 30 percent greater risk for lung cancer in general. In addition, these same women were 50 percent more likely to be afflicted with the specific type of lung cancer known as adenocarcinoma. The longer and more their husbands smoked, the greater the cancer risk for their non-smoking spouse.

You might think that a CD is pretty ho-hum these days. But Andover Bank has added terrific bells and whistles to a great CD. We call it the MAXimizer — the CD that lets you reset your rate if rates go up!

The MAXimizer is a new two year CD with an above-market interest rate. If rates go up, you can move to the higher prevailing two year rate one time during the first year of your investment.

You may also make additional deposits of $500 or more during the first year of the term. Minimum initial investment is only $500, and interest is compounded and credited monthly. Best of all, and unlike mutual funds, your investment is completely FDIC/DIFM insured.

To find out more about our MAXimizer CD, call or stop by any of our eight Merrimack Valley offices. Don't put it off. Andover Bank is offering the MAXimizer CD for a limited time only.

Offer may be withdrawn at any time. Maximum CD balance $250,000. Substantial penalty for early withdrawal.

LOCATION

The old Realtors' adage, "location, location, location," reflects the fact that location is one of the most important considerations in determining the price of a home.

The neighborhood in which a house is located is a major factor, but not the only one. For instance, if a house is on a busy street, it may not appeal to buyers concerned about children or pets playing in traffic. If it's in an area that is not convenient to the major business district, or if there's no public transportation into town, some people might rule it out on that basis. While a nearby school may be an attractive feature to families with children, having a school directly across the street may not seem so desirable. It's important to remember, however, that you can get more house for the money if you're not bothered by location factors that could cause others to rule out the property.

Announcing The Merger of St. John's And St. Joseph's
Hospitals, Effective October 1, 1992

Together... A New Excellence In Healthcare For Greater Lowell.

On July 30, 1992 a combined meeting of the Boards of Trustees of St. John's Medical Center and St. Joseph's Hospital voted to merge the two institutions effective October 1, 1992.

This decision signifies a great step forward in our ability to provide the best healthcare services possible for all the people of Greater Lowell.

A NEW DIMENSION OF EXCELLENCE – READY TO SERVE YOUR HEALTHCARE NEEDS.

Any medical institution is only as good as the people who make it work. Now, with the talents, energy and professional expertise of our combined medical staffs, employees and volunteers, we can work together to provide a new level of excellence in healthcare to the Greater Lowell community.

EFFICIENT, COST-EFFECTIVE EXCELLENCE IN HEALTHCARE SERVICES.

By working together we'll be able to avoid unnecessary duplication of services and strive for less expensive, more cost-effective healthcare solutions for everyone. Plus, our combined medical staff and employees will be able to provide the widest range of quality medical services and specialties available in the Merrimack Valley area today.

A COMBINED, COMMUNITY-BASED CATHOLIC HOSPITAL COMMITTED TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH.

We're proud of our combined 275 years of dedicated service to the good health of Greater Lowell. And, we're committed to continuing to provide the kind of caring, compassionate healthcare you have come to expect from St. Joseph's and St. John's.

Together, we can provide a new level of excellence in healthcare for you.

Andover teachers visit Washington, attend educational 'town meeting'

Four members of the Andover Education Association recently attended the National Education Association's Representative Assembly in Washington, D.C. Participants in the six-day convention included the president, Tom Meyers, first vice president, Kerry A. Costello, and members Mike Lynch and Bob Lague. Mr. Lague also served as the official organizer for the assembly.

The business meeting brought together the largest democratic deliberative body in the world, they said, with 8,500 delegates in attendance.

This year's convention was particularly important to those in Massachusetts, as MTA's state president was a candidate for national office. Rosanne Bacon was elected to serve a three-year term on the NEA Executive Committee.

One of the highlights of the convention was the visit of presidential candidate Bill Clinton, who spent more than an hour conducting an "educational town meeting." He

'The (cabinet) position should be filled by someone who understands what's going on in the classrooms of America today.'

Presidential candidate Bill Clinton, considering appointing a teacher as Secretary of Education responded to questions on subjects ranging from preschool needs to higher-education issues. President Bush had been invited to address the delegates, but chose not to attend.

Mr. Clinton received a strong ovation when he told delegates he would be "a real education president, for a change." He also commented that he would consider appointing a teacher as his education secretary, adding, "The position should be filled by someone who understands what's going on in the classrooms of America today."

In his keynote address, National Education Association President Keith Geiger emphasized that the nation's policymakers still slight public education and the children it serves, ignoring their urgent medical as well as educational needs.

He said, "The Cold War is over, but too many of our children are still out in the cold."

Representative assembly delegates shape the association's legislative program that will guide its work with the 103rd U.S. Congress in the coming months. A major portion of meeting each year is devoted to consideration of resolutions that spell out the association's position on education and other issues affecting children and society in general.

The body reaffirmed its support for free education. NEA has gone on record as strongly opposing any voucher or tuition tax credit system that would subsidize private education schemes and, according to President Geiger, "undermine our national commitment to public education."

The association has a membership of 2.1 million teachers and education support personnel, working in the continental United States and overseas.

AAUW celebrates achievements, looks ahead

Past presidents of the local branch of the American Association of University Women were honored with a Named Grant to the AAUW Educational Foundation.

The foundation has awarded $2.3 million in fellowships and grants to women pursuing advanced degrees, postdoctoral research and community action projects.

The foundation also recently commissioned research on the status of girls in public education and held its first Teacher Institute for Teacher Fellows.

AAUW focuses its efforts on the development of opportunities for women and girls, including removing barriers that prohibit women and girls from reaching their full potential.

Membership in AAUW is open to women and men holding bachelor's degrees.

A membership tea will be held Sunday, Sept. 20, in Andover to provide an opportunity to learn about local branch programs and projects.

For more information, call 475-5282 or 474-4325.

CHEF'S CORNER

Ford's Coffee Shop

Tom and Stella Koravos have been feeding Andover's hungry at Ford's Coffee Shop on Main Street since 1954. Mr. Koravos learned to prepare the shop's specialty, Greek lemon and egg chicken soup, from his mother, Olympia, who brought the recipe with her to Lowell when she emigrated from Greece at the age of 19. Mr. Koravos believes his soup is a remedy for the common cold and swears by its medicinal properties. He must be on to something because he has to make it by the barrel-full during the winter cold-and-flu season. "People always come in and ask for it. They get so upset if we run out!" he said. Mr. Koravos suggests cooks take their time preparing this soup. If the stock is not sufficiently cooled it will cook the egg, resulting in a lumpy, rather than smooth, consistency.

Tom Koravos

Greek Lemon and Egg Chicken Soup

4- to 5-lb. whole roaster chicken	5 cups rice
1 bunch celery	juice of 4 lemons
2 to 3 medium white onions	6 eggs

Put chicken in a large stock pot and fill pot almost to top with water. Cook at near boil for about 3 hours until meat falls off bones. Remove pot from burner and cool. Remove chicken and carefully inspect for bones. Strain stock to remove bones. Set aside stock and chicken pieces to cool. Taste stock and add pepper and salt to taste and 2 tablespoons of MSG if desired. In a separate pot, cook rice and rinse in cool water when done to remove starch. Add to stock and chicken.

In two separate mixing bowls, separate eggs. Beat whites until frothy, but not stiff. Add yolks to whites and beat until smooth. Add lemon juice to eggs, plus a cup of cooled broth and beat until smooth. Pour egg-lemon mixture to cooled broth, stirring until thoroughly mixed. To serve, slowly heat soup until hot, but do not boil.

► Birth notices are sent to the Townsmen by area hospitals. They are printed here every month, on the first Thursday of the month. In addition, babies celebrating their first birthdays who are affiliated with Andover in any way may have their picture in the Townsmen free of charge. It will appear in the issue dated the same week as baby's first birthday; it must be received by 5 p.m. the previous Friday. Mark your calendars! Drop off or send in the baby's photo, along with parents' names, address, phone, and the names of any brothers and sisters (and ages), and other relatives to be included. Typed information is always best; hand-printed information must be legible. Never use ballpoint pen on the back of photos as it can ruin them. They can be picked up at the Townsmen's reception desk the day the issue is published.

Reverend Bruce VanBlair returns to West Parish Church on Sunday

During a period of restoration at West Parish Church, the congregation has enjoyed the opportunity that restoration affords of looking back at their history and reflecting on the many influences which have helped to shape the church.

Undoubtedly the most powerful influence on the direction of the church has always come from the leadership of the pastor. West Parish has been served, since its founding in 1826, by 20 pastors.

The 16th pastor was Bruce VanBlair, who with his wife Mariana and their two children, was the second occupant of the present parsonage at 95 High Plain Road. Rev. VanBlair served West Parish from 1963-1967, and in the opinion of many there, it was all too short a pastorate. He had a flair for preaching sermons. With a twinkle in his eye and a strong voice, parishoners would suddenly find themselves face-to-face with Christian truths.

Mariana played piano, gave lessons, and with her beautiful solo quality voice, was a regular contributor with the choir.

Bruce and Mariana will be in Andover Sunday, Aug. 9. Bruce will preach at worship service that morning and Mariana will sing. There are many in the congregation who remember the VanBlairs and they can look forward to an especially warm West Parish welcome.

reporter who accompanied the crew that afternoon.

During the 10-minute ride to the hospital, firefighter Thornton fitted the woman with an oxygen mask and radioed her vital signs to the LGH emergency room.

Many calls the ambulance crews respond to are transports to local hospitals, but many more are calls to accident scenes and life-threatening emergencies such as heart attacks. The crews also accompany fire trucks to calls and assist neighboring communities when their ambulance crews are on other calls.

In the 24-hour period following the 79-year-old woman's transport to Lawrence General Hospital, the Andover ambulance crew responded to several car accidents, to Bartlett Street where Andover resident Fricka Leistikow was hit by a car (See Don Staruk's account on page 33), and a suicide attempt.

The suicide attempt was phoned into the fire department by an out-of-state friend of the victim, said EMT

Bob Stabile, 26. The victim telephoned her friend and said she took over-the-counter pills and wanted to end her life. The caller told the dispatchers where her friend lived.

The ambulance crew went to the young woman's house and woke her parents, who weren't aware of the situation.

When the EMTs asked the parents to check on their daughter, the parents couldn't wake her. The firefighters took the woman to the hospital where her stomach was pumped.

"You never really think about us until you need us," said firefighter Stabile.

The Townsmen talked with nine of the 16 firefighters who staff the ambulance and provide EMT support on the fire trucks.

All firefighters in Andover begin as EMTs on the ambulance. In addition to passing a Civil Service test, a physical examination and graduating from the firefighting academy in Stowe, firefighters must also take a 100-hour EMT training course and pass a written and practical test before they can work for the Andover Fire Department. EMTs don't work on their own until they have observed an experienced crew for several weeks. Every two years EMTs who work on the ambulance must be recertified.

The junior members of the force staff the ambulance and serve as EMTs on the fire trucks. There are 44 firefighters (only one is a woman), 13 lieutenants, five deputies and one chief on the Andover force.

EMTs work in shifts of two 10-hour days followed by two 14-hour nights (6 p.m.-8 a.m.), with four days off. A crew of four EMTs work together. Two staff the ambulance and two work on the fire trucks. They rotate after two months.

Why did they take this job?

"It's instant gratification when you help someone who's hurt and in pain," said Mike Surette, 25.

A few of the EMTs, Bob Stabile, 26, and Shawn Kelley, 26, are second-generation firefighters. Mr. Stabile's father, Gerald, and brother Steve are on the Andover force and Shawn Kelley's father is a Lawrence firefighter. Cliff Pattullo's two brothers, Brian and Don, are policemen in Andover and Cliff's father, Hector, is retired from the police force.

"I first started off as a dispatcher (for the fire and police departments). At first I wanted to join the police department," said firefighter Pattullo, who is 25.

"But the fire department was hiring and I thought this would be another way I could help people," he said.

A majority of the EMTs grew up and went to school in Andover. Some of the crew who grew up here believe it's comforting to be rescued by a familiar face.

John Senee, 28, had two daughters when he joined the fire department. He said he was looking for a career that could offer him security.

An EMT starts with a base salary of $28,912, said Fire Chief Harold Hayes. Those who have an associate's degree make $30,358; firefighters who have a bachelor's degree make $31,803 and those who have a master's degree earn $32,527, he said. After two years on the force, firefighters are eligible for promotion to lieutenant and higher salaries.

Chief Hayes said he would like to hire more Andover High School graduates because he believes in residents serving other residents, but budget cuts have affected the hiring used in the scrap business. Assorted chains, ropes, wires and pieces of strapping hang from a door. Iron plumbing joints fill shelves; small pieces of tubing stand in a corner by a pile of stove grates and another of toilet floats. Aluminum sheets and tubing lay in another corner.

Like it or not, this junk yard is here in Andover

Back outside, a three-foot stack of window-sash weights sits against a wall.

Hit by a stroke 11 years ago, Mr. Krinsky doesn't remember exactly when his father, Hyman, opened the junk yard on Park Street.

"I really don't know," Mr. Krinsky said one day last week. "He never told me what he did when he came to this country."

His father and mother, Rebecca, Russian immigrants, moved to Boston a few years before the czar was overthrown in Russia, according to an interview done with the elder Krinsky 20 years ago. They moved to Andover in 1916. He worked in Lawrence; she stayed at home with their son.

"I was born here," the younger Mr. Krinsky says, his thick, silver hair sneaking out from the sides of his baseball cap. "We lived on Jenkins Road with no electricity, no water."

According to old newspaper articles, his father opened the junk yard in 1928. One of the barns at the junk yard still has horse stalls that go back to before the younger Mr. Krinsky's time, he says. His father did have a horse and wagon once, but kept the horse at a barn where they lived on Jenkins Road, and never had any horses on Park Street.

The younger Mr. Krinsky graduated from the old Punchard High School, what is now town offices, in 1934.

"We had 78 graduates," he says, amazed at the large graduating classes of more than 300 students today.

He and his father didn't have the best relationship, he says. It was what he calls a "Dear Abby" relationship, "some good, some bad."

"We never communicated. He never took me to a ball game," Mr. Krinsky says. "He never hit me or anything. But it was work, work, work."

His mother died Halloween night, 1927, according to Mr. Krinsky.

"Probably my life would have been altogether different if she had lived," he says.

The younger Mr. Krinsky worked at Tyer Rubber on Railroad Avenue until 1935, when he quit and moved to Colorado to stay with his uncle. That lasted three months and he came back home and went to work for his father in the junk yard. But he didn't always stay put. Sometimes he would do a little traveling and come back. Once he went to Cuba, before Castro was in charge, and liked it "mucho! mucho!"

"He used to have a ball for himself," says Georgina Lane, owner of the Andover Grill, next door to the junk yard. "I've known him all my life."

Friends say that even right up until his father died, in 1973, Morris would

This junk may not be worth much, but Morris Krinsky pays his taxes. As a matter of fact, a town official says taxes on the junkyard property are up to date. Mr. Krinsky's father, "Hymie," was always the first to pay his taxes and was upset when anyone paid ahead of him. Treasurer Myron Muise said, "I used to send him his bill a day before everybody else."

only go out after his father went to bed at night. Since his father's death, the younger Mr. Krinsky has kept the junk business going.

There was a time, during the 1960s and 1970s, when Mr. Krinsky came to see the junk as art, or as statements on society, but he now leaves that idealism to the Phillips Academy students who use him and the junk as subjects for art and photography assignments.

Mr. Krinsky says he looks just like his father.

"We had the same build, barrel-chested, short," he says.

Mr. Krinsky was an amateur wrestler at the YMCA in Lawrence and a great swimmer and diver. He used to go up to "the cove," a swimming hole in Methuen, and dive from a 40-foot tower into the water. Mr. Krinsky said he can remember he would get an egg on his head from hitting the water so hard.

He volunteered for the Army one year before Pearl Harbor, but was turned down because he had curvature of the spine, a condition that keeps him hunched over today.

But he was a square dancer for some 30 years.

"I also did barber-shop singing," he says.

His only regret, he says, is that he never married.

Ms. Lane, who calls Mr. Krinsky "Mo," said anyone who has grown up in Andover knows him. His drink at the Grill was a Ballantine Ale. He hasn't drunk or smoked since the stroke 11 years ago left him paralyzed on the left side, and he pretty much stays at home. His speech is slurred and he has no use of his left arm. He needs a home health aid and gets Meals on Wheels seven days a week.

He was raised an orthodox Jew but no longer attends temple.

Mr. Krinsky appreciates the help he gets from friends, like Rabbi Osher Bronstein, of 4 Oriole Drive, who dropped off chicken soup, which Mr. Krinsky called "Jewish penicillin," for him one day last week. And Pat Juliano, his upstairs neighbor, who gets his breakfast, helps him keep his house neat and clean, does his laundry and takes him to the doctor when he gets sick.

"I worry about him when I go away," Ms. Juliano says.

Mr. Krinsky was left handed but has learned to write with his good hand. And he's still got his wits, and his humor, about him.

"I'd be out here swinging a sledge hammer if it wasn't for the stroke," he says. "If it wasn't for this stroke, I'd be in Club Med."

Open of business

Instead of Club Med, Mr. Krinsky sits in the yard from 10 to noon and 2 to 4 p.m. most every day, and lets business come as it may.

He listens to Spanish music on the radio all the time, but it is not a carry over from his trip to Cuba.

He had one year of Spanish in high school 56 years ago, but learned the language again a few years ago when Hispanics were buying up three-deckers in Lawrence and rebuilding them, he says. They would come to him frequently for used sinks, toilets and bathtubs. Business was good, so he took the time to learn some of the language.

"Now they stopped coming with all the fires," Mr. Krinsky says.

And the rest of the business has also nearly come to a halt.

This past Sunday not a single person came into the junk yard. Fifteen years ago the average guy was off on Saturday or Sunday and would work around the house and come by Krinsky's for a pipe for the mailbox or whatever, he says.

"Now nothing," Mr. Krinsky says. "It's a throw-away society. It's a different generation."

His most recent sale was four meat hooks bought by a North Reading contractor in the last couple of weeks.

"I told him they were back scratchers," Mr. Krinsky jokes.

Mr. Krinsky sends an occasional load of scrap steel to scrap recyclers, but can't drive himself anymore.

During his traveling days, Mr. Krinsky often wintered in Florida, washing dishes and working on his tan. The tan is something he regrets now because of cancerous skin melanomas he's had to have removed from his skin.

"Now I'm paying for it," he says.

process.

According to Chief Hayes, firefighters from other communities who have been laid off are automatically placed on a call-back list and must be considered first for positions in all communities before non-listed candidates.

"That doesn't mean they are any better or any worse; it just limits our ability to select exactly the people we want," he said.

The most recent addition to the Andover department is a firefighter who was laid off from the Lowell Fire Department. Chief Hayes said he replaced a firefighter who retired.

Ambulance calls they remember

EMT Thornton prefers to talk about success stories. He said he will always remember a man he took to the hospital who had chest pains. "He wasn't feeling well and as we drove to the hospital his vital signs improved and he told us he was feeling better. We wheeled him into the hospital and as he was talking to the nurse he dropped dead. His heart stopped beating right there.

"They were able to bring him back, but he was lucky we got him to the hospital when we did. This job, and calls like those, make you realize that you're here one minute and you can be gone the next," he said.

Firefighter Senee, 28, remembers a call to a party where a young man had punched a window and cut an artery. The man could have bled to death if the EMTs hadn't controlled the bleeding and gotten him to the hospital in time.

"When you save someone's life, that's what it's all about," he said.

Dan Guillet, 30, the father of an 8-month-old son, said calls involving sick children affect him much more than they did a year or two ago.

"We like to hear crying babies. It means they are still breathing," he said.

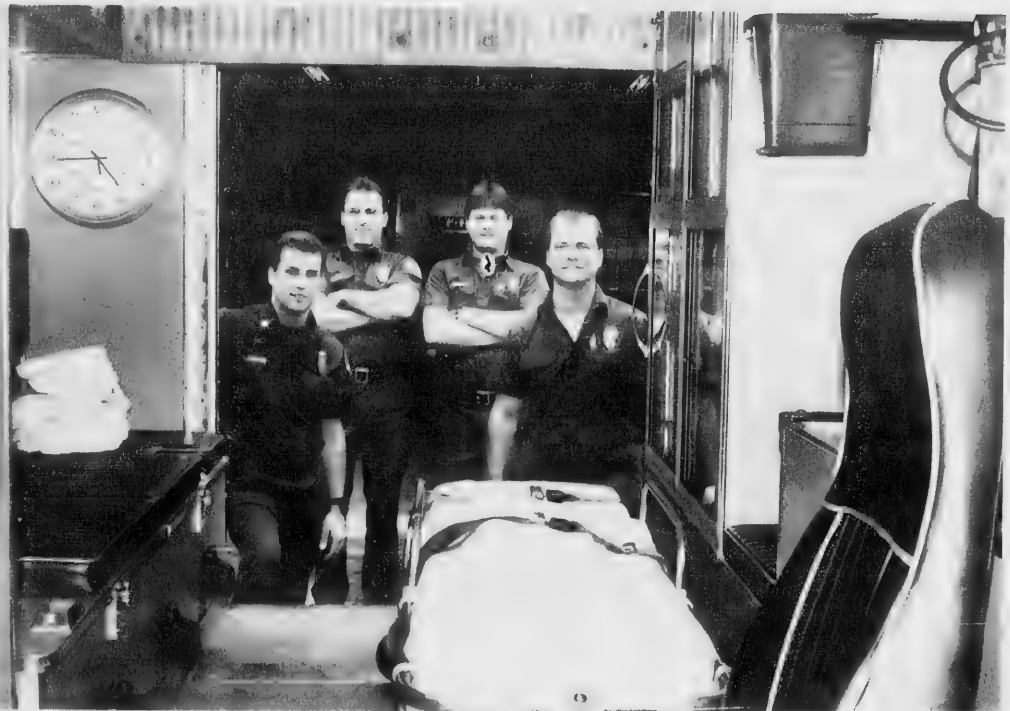

EMT Guillet said firefighters are criticized and the public believes they have a "cushy" job because of all the "down time" they have waiting for calls.

"But they don't understand how stressful it can be. One minute you could be sitting here and the next you're on the highway at a car accident with multiple injuries. People also don't think about all the weekends and holidays we aren't with our families," he said.

EMT Stabile said when he first joined the force more than three years ago, he would sit at the station "shaking, waiting for the bells."

"You try not to take the job home with you, but talking about your day can help. Most of us will sit down and talk about the calls we had when we come back to the station. And my wife is very good about listening to me when I need to talk about a bad day," Mr. Stabile said.

One of those bad days came last November when a postal worker was shot and killed on Andover Street.

"When we arrived on the scene, the police needed us to go in and see if the mailman was still alive. They didn't know if the gunman was still in the building so we grabbed our stuff, ducked behind a few cars and ran into the building," EMT Stabile said.

Firefighter Pattullo said in cases such as the mailman shooting, dispatchers are the eyes and ears for the EMTs.

"Those guys don't get enough credit. Lots of times we are rushing to accident scenes and by the time we get there, they have told us exactly what to expect," he said.

Firefighter Senee said he tries not to dwell on the calls that don't go well or the patients they couldn't save.

"You'd be miserable if you took each call personally and you try to distance yourself once you take a person to the hospital, but sometimes it's hard. You remember names and sometimes recognize a name in the obituaries," he said.

For EMTs Pattullo and Conlon, getting up for calls in the middle of the night are the toughest.

"I joined when I was 29," said 33-year-old firefighter Conlon.

"I thought I was in pretty good shape, but after a few calls in the middle of the night with my heart pounding every call, I was having a tough time. I started working out more after that," he said.

Firefighter Pattullo said there are a lot of calls he can't forget, one where a man in a car accident almost lost his leg, but he prefers to remember one that was much less traumatic, but equally important.

"I went to a call once where an old lady had fallen. She wasn't really hurt as much as she was shaken up and a little scared," he said.

"After we checked her out and determined she wasn't hurt, we helped her pick up a shelf and a few things that fell when she fell. I was in no particular hurry to leave and she made us tea and we sat down and talked to her. I knew that that was the best thing for her," firefighter Pattullo said.

When asked if he would transfer to the police department if there were an opening in the near future, he shook his head.

"I think I've found a home here."

EMTs respond quickly, but it seemed like forever

By Don Staruk

I saw a friend get hit by a car on Bartlet Street Friday morning. It's amazing how fast something like that happens.

Townsmen photographer Matt Sapienza and I had just stopped for a hot dog at The Park, and were walking down Bartlet Street when it happened.

I saw Fricka Leistikow, 80, of 37 Maple St., coming toward us on the sidewalk from Park Street. I remembered I had seen Fricka about a month earlier and we had made plans to get together for lunch some time in late July. I was supposed to call her. I didn't. As I neared her, I tried to think of what day would be good to tell her we could get together, maybe in the next week or two. Then she stopped and turned to cross the street.

Still too far away to say anything to her, I was trying to decide whether I should try to catch her when I must have taken a bite of my hot dog, heard the thunk, and looked up in time to see Fricka's white raincoat spreading out as she hit the ground.

That's about the time things seemed to go into slow motion. It seemed like a long second before my brain understood what my eyes were seeing. I began to run toward Fricka and can remember yelling to a man across the street to call an ambulance. When I got to Fricka, I grabbed her hand and told her I was there. She was looking up, staring at me, and I had to tell her who I was. She said she thought she was going into shock, and asked someone to call her daughter, Mary McCormick, in North Andover. Matt went to make the call.

People gathered around quickly and all seemed to do the right things. An off-duty fire lieutenant, Mike O'Neill, was the second person on the scene and held Fricka's head steady. Someone slid a sweatshirt under her head. Someone else was asking for a blanket and one appeared. Fricka's legs and hip were twisted and she was in pain. Her left hand was bleeding. I talked to Fricka and we waited.

It's strange. I listen to a police radio all day at work and I know how fast the ambulance responds. I know emergency officials can get anywhere in town in just a few minutes. Yet when you are holding someone's hand who is in pain, and you are feeling totally helpless, it seems like a lot of time goes by before help arrives.

At one point, the young man who was driving the car that hit Fricka asked us if he should move his car to get it out of the road, and we told him no, that he should leave it where it was. He was visibly shaken.

When the ambulance did arrive the siren was so loud it was disturbing.

Firefighters Bob Stabile and Barry Thornton, manning the ambulance, put Fricka's left leg in a plastic cast secured by Velcro straps. They cut off her jacket to get to her arm so they could check her blood pressure and to administer intravenous fluids once in the ambulance. Lt. O'Neill asked me to remove her necklace. Then they placed her on a backboard. Fricka cried out when they moved her.

It wasn't until the third time one of the firefighters addressed her as "Fricka," that I heard a very positive sign.

"My name is Fricka," she corrected him sternly.

Someone found eyeglasses on the street and I recognized them as Fricka's. One lens was missing. Dave Cantone, the town parking supervisor, pointed to the lens near one of the firefighter's shoes and I picked it up. It was chipped and had blood on it. We put it with her glasses in her pocketbook.

Fricka asked me to go to the hospital with her. I climbed into the front of the ambulance with her pocketbook and her cane.

The Advanced Life Support crew from Lawrence General Hospital boarded the ambulance on North Main Street, and we continued toward Holy Family Hospital. The ALS crew hooked up intravenous fluids to boost Fricka's blood pressure.

Firefighter Stabile was cautious on turns not to bounce his passenger around. But if you think the bumps at the Route 495 bridge work bother you in the car, try them in an ambulance. Even though Firefighter Stabile slowed for them, Fricka screamed out at each jolt.

Mr. Stabile told me Fricka was a tough lady. She had a cut right to the bone on her left leg and the bone was broken. She also had a bruised hip and probably several other injuries.

We hit more rough roads going into Holy Family and finally we were there. Fricka was whisked away to the emergency room and for X-rays, and I was ushered to the admitting desk.

I gave the administrative nurse as much information as I could, but since Fricka was still alert, the nurse decided to ask Fricka some of the questions herself. I was greatly relieved when the woman returned smiling and saying what a hot ticket Fricka was. Fricka told the doctor that she, too, was a doctor, a doctor of law. And I felt she was going to be all right.

By then, Ms. McCormick, Fricka's daughter, arrived. I turned over Fricka's things to her and told her what I knew, and that, no, I didn't think her mother would be going home tonight. Matt had come to the hospital to give me a ride back to the office, and I left.

On the way back it hit me. Maybe it was the hot dog. If I hadn't stopped for a hot dog at The Park, I might have been talking to Fricka and she wouldn't have crossed the street. Who knows?

Andover emergency medical technicians work to stabilize Andover resident Fricka Leistikow, photo above and below, after she was hit last Friday morning by a car when she was walking on Bartlet Street. Townsman reporter Don Staruk is on the right in top photo, leaning on Ms. Leistikow's cane. After making sure an ambulance had been called, and calling Ms. Leistikow's daughter in North Andover, Matthew Sapienza took photos of the scene. ### This system works well

There's a sort of infrastructure that exists in Andover that some of us take for granted. It's not the roads or the buildings; we regularly talk and worry about those parts of the infrastructure, and they are too visible to take for granted.

What we are talking about is the support team that automatically kicks into action when we are hurt or in trouble.

Ironically, the Townsmen was working last and this week on a story about the community's emergency medical technicians, popularly called EMTs, when two staff members had a chance to see firsthand what those trained experts do on the job.

Even though reporter Don Staruk said it felt like a long time before help arrived to cope when he and photographer Matthew Sapienza witnessed a pedestrian get hit by a car, he knew it was only a matter of minutes until the EMTs arrived. You can read his account on page 33 in today's paper. At one point, there were so many emergency personnel working on the woman that our photo shows it was difficult to tell one from another.

Another part of the support team that exists in Andover is its caring residents and people who work here. Without even discussing what they would do, Don immediately went to the woman's side to comfort her while they waited for help; someone else phoned the police; Matt ran to a phone to call the woman's daughter; and someone found a blanket to place under the victim's head.

In another show of community spirit, only about 30 minutes after the accident, a woman phoned the Townsmen to ask the name of the young man who was driving the car that hit the woman. The person on the phone wanted to reach out to the driver because recently she, too, hit a pedestrian. This time, she was walking out of J.B. Doherty's office on Bartlet Street and she witnessed the accident. She wanted to help. She wanted to tell the young driver that she understood how he felt.

It is good to know the system works and that people care.

My friend Fricka is in the hospital

By Perry Colmore Catlin

A few months after I started working at the Townsmen, two reporters returned to the office after doing what we call a person-on-the-street interview. "We met the most interesting woman," one of them said. "She had so much to say." And so on. They went on to describe an older woman whom they had often seen walking around downtown.

"What's her name?" I asked, not expecting to know her, since I was new here.

"Fricka Leistikow," one of them answered.

There can only be one person by that name. I didn't know Fricka lived in Andover. I had last seen her in the mid-1960s, when she and I were teaching at a boys' school in New York City. I was just out of college and she had been teaching for quite some time. I taught first grade; she was teaching remedial reading, among other things.

During the past two and a half years, I have visited with Fricka on and off, and so has Don Staruk, one of the reporters who first interviewed her on the street.

Last Friday, Don and Townsmen photographer Matt Sapienza witnessed Fricka being hit by a car. She had been walking on Bartlet Street. Don and Matt aren't sure exactly what happened, but they were badly shaken by what they saw. (Don's account of the accident is on page 33.)

Monday, I visited her at Holy Family Hospital, where she is recovering from a broken leg, a badly dislocated hip and lacerations. One good sign is that she is complaining and being demanding. But she is in a lot of pain. By Monday, she'd been in surgery twice.

While I was there, she had two visitors and a phone call. People care a lot about her; so do I.

Chef's Corner

We are excited about a new column that we're launching with this issue: Chef's Corner, on page 24. We hope you like it, too. The idea is to borrow one recipe from an area chef, one that we think readers might like to try.

So if you are a chef, or if you know one you'd like to recommend, tell him or her to write down the recipe and drop it by the Townsmen, Or send it to us at 33 Chestnut St. We'll send photographer Matthew Sapienza to capture the chef in a photo. Also, let us know when you try one how you liked it.

Reader survey

Next week we will run a full-page reader survey in the Townsmen and we hope you will take the time to fill it out and return it to us. We often check with our readers to find out how we are doing. This is your newspaper, and while we have some ideas of what works in a community newspaper, you, our readers, are the ones who know best what you want in your paper. Thank you in advance for answering our questions.

What are teens thinking?

One of the many benefits of working at a newspaper is opening the mail that comes to us. Recently, I received a press release from a marketing consulting company out of New York, BKG Youth, which works only on kid-related projects. For instance, that group is coming out with a book called What Are You Going to Do About Hate? in October.

The firm compiled its statistics by questioning teens at 100 high schools

Dear Editor and Matthew,

Thank you for the shirt and for taking my picture.

It was fun seeing my picture in the paper!

Your friend Tom Holber

nationwide. BKG came up with some interesting statistics:

- Teens are cause oriented (51.6 percent volunteer their time to an organization or cause), but they also party: 60.1 percent would rather hang out with friends at a party, compared with 4.7 percent who would choose to discuss politics with George Bush and .6 percent who would opt to argue American lit with Mark Twain.

- They've cheated, occasionally: 59.8 percent reported cheating more than once, but not often. And 53.9 percent have forged their parent's signature on an absence note or other school-related documents. Still, 74.9 percent say they wouldn't pay someone to take their SATs or ACTs even if they would not get caught.

- When it comes to most-desirable dinner partners, 28.3 percent chose Andre Agassi; 25.9 percent chose Madonna; and 14.9 percent picked Kirk Cameron. Their choices of bosses: 21.9 percent said Liz Claiborne;

15.7 percent picked Spike Lee; 13.7 percent selected President Bush; and 12 percent selected Lee Iacocca. Only 3.2 percent selected Bill Clinton.

- Asked if they think it's appropriate for a girl to ask a guy out for a date, 88.3 percent said yes. Asked what would impress their parents most after they'd completed four years of high school, 69.7 percent answered an acceptance letter to an Ivy League college.

- Of the group surveyed, 26.5 percent consider themselves preppies; 23.3 percent consider themselves jocks; and 5.5 percent say they are metal heads. Here's a sad statistic: 56 percent of teens surveyed have had a friend who talked about killing him- or herself.

- They date: 39.7 percent have dated between two and five people in the last 12 months and are having sex at a younger age (median age is 14.0). That surprised me; I thought they were dating one person for a long time.

- Magic Johnson's announcement that he has tested positive for the HIV virus has persuaded 53.9 percent of teens surveyed to always practice safer sex; 39.7 percent say that Magic's announcement has had no effect on them at all. The most common factor in their decision to have sex is peer pressure/popularity (30 percent), followed by lust (28.6 percent) and curiosity (23.6 percent). More than 52 percent of the teen-agers surveyed know someone who has had sex when he/she didn't want to.

- The teens have an opinion about Magic, too: 39.4 percent think that he's great on the court and careless off; 19 percent think he got an unlucky break; and 16.3 percent say he had it coming - he sleazed around.

- Finally, 20.1 percent of teens surveyed have been victims of gender discrimination; 15.5 percent have been victims of racial discrimination; and 4.1 percent have been victims of ethnic discrimination.

Any opinions about the above? I'd love to hear from you.

Editor, Townsman:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank a number of people who made the second annual Henry Wyatt Golf Classic possible.

Kids energize him; ditto the other way around

By Mary Katis

Rick Gorman was treated as a child the way he treats children and teenagers today. As director of North Andover Youth Services, Mr. Gorman has a field of fans and scores of success stories.

North Andover Youth Services was established in 1988. David Rand and Carrie Crouch wanted to start a community-service program for the youth in town and spearheaded efforts to find funding. Mr. Gorman, who was working for the Department of Social Services in Lawrence, became the first Youth Services director.

After graduating from Suffolk University with a bachelor's degree in government, Mr. Gorman worked for the Department of Mental Health as a case-worker and then in Lawrence with teens and abusive families for three years.

One of the youngest of six children, he was raised in Winthrop and attended Don Savio High School in Boston. The priests and brothers took an interest in the kids and spent many weekends and after-school hours with the students. The priests organized team sports, went to sport events with the boys, taught them about nature and had discussions about values and life in general.

"I had a close family and luckily my older siblings spent time with me by doing things together," said Mr. Gorman. "I wanted the Youth-Service job so I could carry on what the priests had taught me about life and to assist in helping others. I was lucky during my growing years and want to give back."

Richard Rozzie, assistant principal of North Andover High School, said, "I admire Rick. He is an incredible young man. Joe Hehn, a special-education teacher and class adviser, worked last year with Rick to set up the Focus program. This program is an alternative program to help kids at risk. Rick is respected by the high school staff and the kids."

Mr. Rozzie described Mr. Gorman as genuine, honest, warm, responsible, young, energetic and someone who finds good in every kid.

Mr. Gorman is finishing master's level courses in community social psychology at the University of Massachusetts Lowell. This area of study, according to Mr. Gorman, centers on the premise that better mental health comes from better community life. He is committed to help North Andover and its youth grow through programs for positive life experiences, to help the youth develop good self esteem and find their individual leadership skills.

"The Youth Service center is a place where young people can come and volunteer or be part of a program which will help them grow or learn about their talents or leadership abilities."

said Mr. Gorman. "This center is for all the kids, the high achiever, the athlete, the forgotten one or dysfunctional one."

After four years, the name and reputation of the Youth Center and Rick Gorman have made an impact on the community. Families, teens and middle and high school teachers and guidance departments seek Mr. Gorman's help for crisis intervention, for therapy referrals and as a resource for teens and their families. The center has a 24-hour telephone beeper service for emergencies. Recently, when 25 North Andover teens were arrested and charged with alcohol abuse, Mr. Gorman was notified by some of the teens' parents who wanted advice on handling the problem and referrals for counseling for their teen-agers.

"Second Chance Community Service Project is one of the Youth Service programs," said Mr. Gorman. "The 25 teens who were arrested for alcohol abuse were mostly first-time offenders and qualified for the Lawrence District Court to direct them to Youth Service for community-service hours. Youths are sent to this program for four to six months and expected to complete at least two hours of community service per week, i.e. work with the Department of Public Works on the streets, clearing debris from the forest, cleaning police cruisers, joining group discussions. If the youth complies with the program, the court charge is erased, but if he or she does not comply, then the youth is brought before the judge and charged with the initial charge."

"The kids lost a lot of alternative courses last year because of budget cuts, but Youth Services was able to give them another place to learn," said Mr. Rozzie.

When the North Andover budget was tight and many school and community staff were losing their jobs, Mr. Gorman and Youth Services were held secure.

The high school will have a full-time coordinator this year, who will work in the Focus program. The coordinator will be available to reach the at-risk students and be accessible for referrals, and to work with the guidance department and classroom teachers.

Youth Services has 28 social, educational and recreational programs that are staffed by paid employees and adult or teen volunteers from the community. The board of directors are David Tremblay, chairman, Bruce Butterfield, Joyce Bradshaw, David Rand, Jon Van Offrin, Tracy Constiglioni, Virginia Foulds, Carrie Crouch, Peter Breen, Brenda Clark and John Markun.

Staff and volunteers are Carrie Crouch, office manager, Marcia Ford, John Cary, Marta Modigliani, Brian Cramp, Lisa Breen, Rob St. Hilaire, Joe Walsh, Tallie Veras and Kelly Crimmins.

Ms. Crimmins, a recent graduate of Merrimack College who majored in sociology, will move from being a part-time employee to full time next week.

"People ask to help," said Mr. Gorman. "People feel an ownership by fundraising or serving on a board of directors, or volunteering in programs. It's important to keep the staff energetic and young to be good role models. I want to keep the programs current. For example, skateboards are popular so we have to go with the interest and this keeps kids in the program."

Teenco is a Youth Services program run by a parent advisory council. The program sponsors social, educational and recreational activities for grades six, seven and eight and high school. This program plans dances, concerts, and field trips to keep kids busy and away from alcohol and drugs. Teenco is an example of how people volunteer and become a link in the chain of Youth Services.

"Self esteem building is an integral part of being healthy and living well," said Mr. Gorman.

He uses sports as an activity to get to know teens and personally jumps into the ballgames. He has discussion groups about substance abuse, peer pressure, AIDS and self esteem. The Parent Awareness program meets monthly to help troubled families or to educate parents about medicine, drugs, alcohol and depression.

"Kids energize me," said Mr. Gorman. "They are ever changing. I don't like to see what they are dealing with in 1992. Inner cities show a lack of resources and programs and all the problems that come from this. We have to have things for kids in Andover and North Andover. If community budgets cut the youth programs, more problems will arise. Every community should have a program like ours."

Emmett Goggin, principal of North Andover High School, was supportive of Mr. Gorman's teen intervention and his work with students who were suspended from school. Mr. Goggin used the center for tutoring or community service. Mr. Gorman appreciated how Mr. Goggin accommodated the curriculum schedules to help troubled teens with group discussions or one-on-one support through Youth Services.

"I'd like to have a preventive program in the lower grades and to enlarge the Youth Center, but all this needs funding," said Mr. Gorman. "Most towns miss the boat and build the building without the programs. We have the programs and town support, so the funding will come for enlarging the center. My five-year plan is to have a Youth Center that can be a drop-in place, have a gym and game rooms, and to have space for confidentiality during discussions."

Mr. Gorman is married to Nancy Marquis and the couple are expecting their first child in a week or so. He is very excited about becoming a parent. His energy and excitement level seem to be super charged for his new baby and for all the young boys and girls who are involved at the Youth Center.

Mr. Rozzie, assistant principal at North Andover High School, described Mr. Gorman as genuine, honest, warm, responsible, young, energetic, and someone who finds good in every kid.

Hesenius throws 21 K's; win streak extends to 21 Legion Post 8 continues quest for 1992 State championship

In approximately 24 hours the Andover American Legion Post 8 baseball team will continue its quest for the 1992 State championship, the undefeated locals having qualified for the 'Elite Eight' by sweeping Revere 7-6 and 11-2 in a second preliminary best-of-3 series last weekend.

The two victories stretched the club's win streak through 21 games, and Andover opens play in the double-elimination State quarterfinals tomorrow evening at 5 p.m. against New Bedford at Szo Park in Chicopee.

Andover finished the regular season a perfect 17-0 and has won four straight playoff games.

Nine members of the team are chasing their second State baseball title of the year, having played for the Andover High Division 1 champs as well.

He lost the no-hitter with two outs in the bottom of the ninth at Natick's Mahan Field. Rich Brothers clouting a double to right center before Hesenius whiffed the final batter.

Post 8 moved ahead 3-0 in the third on a Matt Daniels' double, singles by Matt Wolcott and Mike Sullivan (bunt) and three walks.

They added three in the fifth when Daniels clouted another double and scored on an overthrow for the second time. Sizzling Chris Lembo tripled and RBI singles were laced by Hesenius and Mike Daley.

Back-to-back doubles by Wolcott and Gus Quattlebaum accounted for the final run in the eighth.

Sullivan, Lembo, Daley, Wolcott and Daniels paced the 12-hit attack with two apiece.

Andover, 7-6

Zone 8 champion Revere threw a scare into Zone 8A titlist Andover in their series opener, but Mike Sullivan walked to lead off the bottom of the ninth and used his speed to score the game-winning run on an infield error (dropped throw).

Post 8 trailed 2-0 early, pulled into leads of 5-2 and 6-4 and then stumbled momentarily as Revere tied it with two runs in the eighth.

Starter Mike Kinnon (7.1 innings), Todd Murray and Jim Hanning pitched for Andover, Hanning collecting the victory despite pitching to just one batter. He relieved Murray in the top of the ninth with the go-ahead run aboard, curling a third strike curve over the plate to catch the Revere batter looking.

Leadoff hitter Bobby Sheehan paced Post 8 with a perfect 3-for-3 evening, scoring twice, while other hits were added by Sullivan, Chris Lembo, Justin Hesenius, Mike Daley, Gus Quattlebaum and Matt Daniels.

Hesenius, Daley, Wolcott and Daniels had one RBI apiece.

Andover, 11-2

Jim Hanning saw his streak of innings without allowing an earned run halted at 83, but he fanned 11 in seven strong stanzas before giving way to mop-up man Todd Murray.

Post 8 put together a solid 15-hit attack, led by outfielder Mike Sullivan who highlighted a three-hit night with a long home run.

Chris Lembo added a pair of safeties, including his fourth home run of the Legion season and second roundtripper of the playoffs.

Justin Hesenius was on base five times, lacing two hits, and Gus Quattlebaum drilled three safeties.

Completing the offense with one hit each were Jim Landry, Matt Daniels, Bob Daley, Hanning and Murray.

BOYS' SUMMER SOCCER RESULTS

In Greater Boston Boys' High School Summer Soccer League action,
Andover 7 - Concord 0

Andover dominated this game, giving Concord very few scoring opportunities. Quang Nguyen opened the scoring, assisted by Drew Leinsohn and Kevin Nuskys. Sean Croteau took a feed from Eric Fox and scored just inside the near post. Josh Nelken and Nuskys had a rapid sequence of passes that resulted in Nguyen's second goal. Nelken then took a Nuskys pass deep into the right corner and scored from a difficult angle. In the second half, Nelken scored on Reggie Hayes' corner kick; Keith Selvitelli tallied on a direct kick; and Nuskys ended the scoring, assisted by Dan Bucholtz. Chris Sintros recorded the shutout in goal. Mike Famiglietti, Eric Pisick and Steven Kulcsar displayed fine defense while Brian Croteau and Lyle Morgan had good offensive efforts.

Andover 5 - North Andover 0

Andover ended the regular season with a 7-2-1 record to place second in the 10-team league. Josh Nelken opened the scoring by converting Mike Famiglietti's pass. Quang Nguyen tallied the next four goals with assists credited to Reggie Hayes, Nelken (two) and Famiglietti. Chris Sintros had his second straight shutout in goal, including a diving save. Pete Murphy, Matt Ely and Sean Croteau played well offensively and Jim Woodroffe, Dave Wartman and Rob Weisman played solidly in the backfield.

Andover defeated Chelmsford, Acton-Boxborough and Marlborough in the playoffs for a final record of 10-2-1.

Andover 2 - Chelmsford 1

This quarterfinal match-up was a spirited contest. Reggie Hayes took a pass from Josh Nelken and his shot took a high bounce over the goalie's head. With the score tied late in the game, Eric Fox hustled up from his defensive position and made a perfect pass to Quang Nguyen who scored the game-winner. Chris Sintros did a solid job in goal and made a save off a direct kick just before time expired.

Booster of the week: Dan Small, Mike O'Sullivan and Drew Leinsohn.

Andover 2 - Action 1

Andover rallied to a dramatic win after falling behind 1-0 at the half, despite very wet playing conditions. A succession of head balls by Brian Croteau to Reggie Hayes to Josh Nelken resulted in the first goal. Nelken then took the ball off a throw-in and beat the defense with a shot in the far left corner with four minutes left in the game. Keith Selvitelli starred at sweeper; John Desmond, Rob Weisman, Eric Pisick and Eric Fox shut down the opponents' offense. Matt Reghitto came off the injured list to get the winning goal.

BOW: Dan Bucholtz, Dave Wartman and Adam McHale.

Andover 5 - Marlborough 0

Andover took a 1-0 lead in the first half of the championship game after John Martin's throw-in was deflected by a defender into the goal. Martin and Josh Nelken then executed a perfect play off a direct kick with Nelken feeding Martin for the score. Nelken then passed up the middle to Lyle Morgan who beat the keeper for the third goal. Dan Bucholtz converted Martin's cross for a score and Kevin Nuskys completed the scoring on an indirect kick. Keith Selvitelli anchored the defense while Matt Reghitto handled seven shots flawlessly. Steve Kulcsar and Adam McHale were sold in the backfield while Dave Wartman, Jim Woodroffe and Brian Croteau did well offensively.

BOW: Pete Murphy, Eric Fox and Eric Pisick.

Andover boys capture gold at Bay State Games

Five Andover boys were presented gold medals and jackets after sweeping the field in the Junior Boys' Basketball Division of the Bay State games at Harvard University July 16-19. Joe Long, Paul McNeice, Rick Mendez, James Perry and Patrick Sharkey were members of the winning team. They have been members of the St. Robert's traveling basketball team for three years and were coming off an undefeated season.

The Bay State team was coached by Dave Fazio, Jim Weymouth and Charlie Long and also included Brian Bettano, Matt Howshan, Tom Montanez, John Delle and Dave Jacobsen, all of Methuen.

The Bay State team beat Wihnington 75-44 in the opener, despite the absence of starter Perry and an injury to Sharkey that left him sidelined for the tournament. Mendez contributed 20 points, Long 11 and Bettano, Montanez and Delle posted double figures.

In the second game, against the Cape, Perry pumped in 35 points, including seven three-pointers.

Andover/Methuen romped over the Magic team with an 82-45 victory. Perry had 24 points, Long 11 and Mendez five while Bettano and Delle had double figures.

The team played the biggest game of the series to date on July 18, which launched them into the Bay State finals. Although down by as many as 18 points in the first half to a Berkshire team, they pulled together and chipped away at the lead. Perry and Mendez's 15 points each, Long's six points and fine passing and McNeice's defensive efforts resulted in a 70-62 win.

The final game to determine the gold-medal winners was played July 19 against Bristol. Andover/Methuen had to climb back from an 11-point deficit to win 74-70. Bettano hit a key three-point shot down the stretch and sunk two foul shot and Howshan had two quick layups. Perry had 20 points, Mendez had 19 points and 14 rebounds, Long had four points and 10 assists and McNeice had two points.

Junior Little League All-Stars are state champions

The team is off to Bennington, Vt. for the Eastern Regionals, Aug. 9-16

The Andover Junior 13-year-old Little League All-Stars became the latest town baseball team to win a state championship, beating Leicester 7-3 in the title game last weekend in East Hampton.

The victory propelled the District 11 and Eastern Mass. champs, now 6-0 in tournament play, into the 11-team Eastern Regionals in Bennington, Vt. Aug. 9-16.

The Massachusetts champ drew a first round bye in the Easterns, so Andover will wait until next Monday to face the winner of a first round game between the Maine and New Hampshire state champs.

Andover's second game in the double-elimination tourney, win or lose, will be Tuesday.

Team champions from New York, Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and all six New England states will converge on Bennington.

The Eastern Regional champion will leave Bennington by bus for Albany, N.Y., where the players and coaches will board a plane for the flight to the Junior 13-year-old Little League World Series in Taylor, Mich. Aug. 17-23.

Rangy righthander Joe Sciolla (3-0 tourney record) went the distance on the mound against Leicester, scattering eight hits while walking two and striking out two.

Andover raced to a 5-0 lead in the second inning and did all its scoring in the first three stanzas.

Jason Monarca contributed a two-run single while Rob Kwon, Marc O'Sullivan and Greg Wojtkun added RBI singles. Al Kwon drove home a run with an infield out, and other Andover basehits were singles by Sciolla and Rob Kwon.

Losing pitcher Mike Dombrowski fired a six-hitter, walking four and whiffing five, and he also led Leicester's offense with 4-for-4 including a pair of doubles. He scored one run and drove home another.

The Andover contingent left for East Hampton at 7:30 the morning of the state final game, stopping at a restaurant on the turnpike for breakfast to break up the 2-1/2 hour ride.

Both Andover pitchers, Sciolla and Pat Annese (3-0), will be rested, eligible and available to pitch next Monday.

▲ A Department of Public Works' crew unearthed this boulder while replacing water lines on Park Street last week. The town is replacing old lines with new 12-inch water mains from Main Street down Park Street, along Barillet Street past Morton and Wheeler streets to Chapel Avenue, out to South Main Street and down Salem Street to Holt Road, and down Holt Road to Vine Street. The work will then continue across South Main Street on Gardner Avenue to Sunset Rock Road, Alderbrook Road and back to Main Street. The entire project should take about a year according to Bob McQuade, director of the Department of Public Works.

BUSINESS PROFILES

Pluri and Anne Piazza

Piazza Insurance Agency, Inc.

The Piazza Insurance Agency has been serving the Merrimack Valley for the last 52 years. For three generations the members of the Piazza family have seen to the insurance needs of the community.

Pluri Piazza began his career in the insurance industry as a "debit man," collecting weekly insurance payments in his Lawrence neighborhood. In April 1940, he and his wife, Anne, started the Piazza Insurance Agency out of their apartment on Trenton Street. Pluri worked as a wool sorter in the mills to support the family, selling insurance in his free time; and Anne got her broker's license and ran the business while taking care of her family. By 1943, the business had grown large enough that it was moved out of the house into a storefront office on Lawrence Street and the Piazza Insurance Agency became the full-time career for both Pluri and Anne.

The agency office was moved to 187 Essex St. in 1967 and relocated to 278 Essex St., due to a fire, in 1975. During this time, Pluri and Anne continued to enlarge the business with their son, Paul. Both Pluri and Anne were actively involved in the agency until their deaths. Pluri in 1984 and Anne in 1982. In the 10 years since Anne's death, the Piazza Insurance Agency has continued to increase its customer base without sacrificing the personal service for which it is known.

Today the Piazza Insurance Agency

Inc. is located at One Elm Square in Andover. Paul and his son, John, are now involved in the business which offers complete lines of business and personal insurance service, but they have never forgotten where the company started and who were their first customers. All policies are equally as important to them whether they are commercial policies or personal. Lines policies. The ethics and respect for the customer is instilled in them by Pluri and Anne are still the guiding principles of the business.

The Piazza Insurance Agency is located at One Elm Square in Andover. They are open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Telephone: (508) 474-4200. Susan Pakress

Krinsky's junk is his treasure

Won't sell out

Mr. Krinsky says he won't ever sell the junk yard, but it's not like he never thought about it.

"People tell me, why don't I go to a rest home. Or why don't I go to Florida and have a muchacha take care of me... Not a bad idea," he says, pondering the latter option with a smile.

He's had many offers to buy his land, but won't sell, Mr. Krinsky says. His father took care of his needs in a trust that pays the bills. Mr. Krinsky wouldn't say if the trust also forbade the sale of the property, but he did say the business was set up so it can't be sold and that the junk yard would come to an end with his eventual passing.

"I can't sell my business. I'm the last of the Mohicans," he says.

In the meantime, he is still serving the public, he says.

"I've had a lot of people say, 'Boy, am I glad you're still here,'" Mr. Krinsky says.

And talking with the people who still come by keeps him going.

"This here is my therapy," he says.

Resident plays bat girl for Sox

Kristine Kirwin, age 10, of Andover, won a special sweepstakes that entitled her to be the Milk Duds Celebrity Batgirl for the Boston Red Sox game versus the New York Yankees on Tuesday, June 16.

As the Milk Duds Celebrity Batgirl, Kristine went on the field for a close-up look at the Red Sox batting practice. This VIP Red Sox experience included a photo with a Red Sox player, a behind-the-scenes tour of Fenway Park and recognition through a scoreboard and public address announcement. She also received Red Sox souvenirs, including a jersey, bat, autographed ball, certificate and four box seat tickets for the game.

PARK STREET ALLEY

Andover shops are undiscovered treasures

By Lisa Boudreau

The cluster of shops tucked away in the alley at 68 Park St. is a find in itself. But the treasures within the six shops and the merchants who sell them are just as unique.

During a trip to Park Street alley, you can find everything from vintage clothes, rare books, prints and frames to furniture, dried flowers, ceramic birdbaths and Victorian-era needlework supplies. There is even a small garden where people are invited to sit at one of the three tables and enjoy the warm weather and scenery.

The Mercantile

Linda Saunders opened her clothes consignment shop in the first floor of the white barn in the fall of 1986. Since then, she has expanded every year and has added furniture and housewares to her inventory, which takes up part of the second floor.

"This is really a fun, eclectic place," said Ms. Saunders, who co-owns the shop with her husband, Jay Saunders.

The Mercantile is opened Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Sundays from 1 to 4 p.m.

On Wednesdays she accepts items on consignment. People who bring in men's, women's and children's clothing, furniture, jewelry and other items to be sold can expect to get back 50 to 70 percent of what the items sell for.

"One of the nice things is that you can find anything from a $1 necklace to a $1,600 dining room set here," she said.

"There's a little something for everyone," she said. "I keep a trunk full of clothes that are perfect for children's dress-up. All are for sale and most are very reasonably priced. I love to watch the kids who come in get all dressed up. The other day, a little girl left the store wearing a shawl and long gloves."

On the cover

Jay Saunders, who co-owns The Mercantile with his wife, Linda, shows off one of the many unique mirrors that can be found at their Park Street alley shop.

Andover Gallery

Andover Gallery, a full-service frame shop, is owned and operated by Katherine Yezerksi. All four walls of her second-floor shop in the white barn are covered with frame samples.

"I think I have the largest selection of frames around," Ms. Yezerksi said. "I can frame anything in any style people want. I really believe service is what sets us apart."

In addition to framing, Ms. Yezerksi also offers frame restoration and will do some minor restoring of prints and art works.

Her store is open Tuesday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

A Proper Season

Betsy Williams' A Proper Season shop is a feast for the senses with its aromatic dried flowers and herbs and colorful arrangements. Ms. Williams' creations have been featured in such publications as Colonial Homes, Country Living, Brides Magazine, The Boston Globe and the New York Times.

Seasonal flowers and herbs, their history and lore are Ms. Williams' passion. Her shop, which she owns with her husband, Ned Williams, includes dried arrangements and garden accessories.

Garlic week is set for fall

For the past seven years, her shop has been showcasing and, she hopes, "celebrating" the different flora of each season.

This fall, she will host a garlic week that will include food tasting and recipes. During the Christmas season, there will be an Austrian woman in her shop who creates glass globe ornaments.

One of her many specialties is dried and fresh floral arrangements with herbal accents for weddings. She can also dry wedding flowers for keepsake bouquets and wreaths.

A Proper Season is open Monday through Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Beginning Saturday, Aug. 8, from 10 a.m. to noon, Mr. Williams and his upstairs neighbor, David Rodger, who owns Andover Books and Prints, will host a weekly coffee for the public in the garden behind their building.

Donna Lee Rubin welcomes a visitor to Ruby Manor Antiques and Fine Arts Gallery, on Main Street in North Andover.

Ruby Manor Antiques has worldwide treasures

Ruby Manor Antiques and Fine Arts Gallery on Main Street in North Andover, owned by Donna Lee Rubin, opened in October 1991.

An avid collector of Orientalia and Continental porcelain, Ms. Rubin has traveled extensively since childhood in pursuit of her antique treasures. The daughter of an antiques dealer, she was constantly exposed to the business and has exhibited at many out-of-state and Boston shows.

Located in a circa 1850 historical building with a walk lined with chrysanthemums and red roses, the shop is a charming site for an antiques business and features plenty of parking in the lot behind the property.

The gallery features porcelain, marble, bronzes, French furniture, European watercolors and oils, minia-

Andover Books and Prints

David Rodger loves books and has been collecting and selling unique books for years. In 1985, he set up shop on the second and third floors of a former Park Street residence.

"There are too many books in the world," he said. "The books I stock are hand-picked either because their content is of lasting interest or the book-making is unique or a piece of art itself," he said.

His inventory ranges from books on local history to travel and cooking, novels, the classics, biographies and much more. He also sells cards and music that would be difficult to find anywhere else.

'There are too many books in the world. The books I stock are hand-picked either because their content is of lasting interest or the book-making is unique or a piece of art itself.'

During the summer, his shop is open Monday through Friday, noon to 5 p.m., and Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. In the fall, the shop is open 1 to 4 p.m., and he invites the public to enjoy tea and listen to favorite stories during his "Tea at Three" series.

Alphabet Books and Antiques

Brendan Roche combined his two interests, antiques and books, four years ago and opened Alphabet Books and Antiques in the Park Street alley. For 15 years, he had worked for other businesses in the antiques field.

"My shop offers a little bit more than just one or the other," he said. "I get just as much satisfaction, maybe even more, from selling a Shakespeare book to a 12-year-old than an antique to a doctor who is a collector."

Some of the antiques and books for sale are displayed along the stairs in the multi-level store.

His favorite subject area, one that he has specialized in, is Irish and Celtic literature.

Mr. Roche has a mail-order business and has customers who come to him specifically for this material.

The shop is opened Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Sundays, from Thanksgiving to Christmas, noon to 5 p.m.

PARK STREET ALLEY

Stitches of the Past

Helen Chongris' Victorian needlework shop, which opened in June, is the newest edition to the collection of shops in the Park Street alley. Ms. Chongris carries mostly European kits and threads.

The shop is open Tuesday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and by appointment.

"Because in many cases we bypass the distributor and deal directly with the manufacturers, we can offer very competitive prices on the imported items we carry," Ms. Chongris said.

All but one of the framed, cross stitch, needlepoint and embroidery pieces for sale were made by either Ms. Chongris or a member of her family. She also carries Victorian antique sewing tools and books on needlework.
